

Cornerstone Art Show

Cornerstone Center for the Arts, a nonprofit community arts center, is getting ready for an exciting event – the annual Cornerstone Art Show, an art competition open to the public and featuring galleries by four Cornerstone artists. This year, the Art Show will be held on Tuesday, April 14th, from 5:00-8:00pm.

History

Last year, there were over 220 pieces from over 140 artists on display. Over 400 people attended last year's show.

This Year's Show

Community members are invited to submit their two and three dimensional works as well as their video art during the submission week, March 30th to April 3rd, from 1:00-6:00pm. Submission forms are available in our building as well as online at www.cornerstonearts.org.

Educational Aspect

At the Cornerstone Art Show, we will have four featured artists on hand to discuss their work and the creative process behind it. Please join us for an exciting evening of community member art work!

FEATURED

BLAIR BOWDEN is a senior Visual Communications major with an emphasis in graphic design at Ball State University. He was born in Louisville, KY. Ball State has given him an amazing opportunity to study and create art in an unbelievable way. The opportunity to travel and experience different lifestyles has been influential on his art and his life as a whole. In much of his work, he tries to create something with a sense of emotion and thought. Not an emotion or thought that he feels while creating the piece, but rather what emotions or thoughts the viewer has while viewing the piece.

PATRICIA KREIGH is a graduate of Indiana Wesleyan University with a major in Art Education. She has spent many years teaching art in public schools. Patricia enjoys all types of art and has studied a variety of mediums such as painting, drawing, photography, weaving, and other various platforms.
